

SPECIAL ISSUE/S
CALL FOR PAPERS!
DUE OCTOBER 1, 2020

1. COVID-19 Impacts on Public Transportation

Current and potential impacts to operations, workforce, planning, vehicle design, facility design, and ridership; Case studies; Impacts on vulnerable/disadvantaged users; Social distancing and hygiene in public transportation systems; New materials, disinfecting measures and design standards for facilities and vehicles; Crisis communications; Public transportation and public health; Managing crowds while maintaining social-distancing.

2. Effective Uses of Automated Data for Public Transportation

AVL/APC/AFC data historical/real time; Crowdsourced/mobile phone data for planning and operations; Bluetooth data for travel times; Automated data for real time operations/management, incident management, service restoration performance measurement, fare policy, market research and equity; Automated data for demand or customer behavior; Visualization tools; Data management, access and governance.

3. Public Transportation Safety and Security

Emergency management and response; Continuity of operations; Natural disaster response; Pre-disaster preparation; Post-disaster recovery and adaptation; Passenger and public safety; Perceptions of crime and risk in public transportation; Worker protection systems; Transit employee safety; Transit security challenges; Cybersecurity; Human trafficking; homelessness and public transportation.

NOTE: Please specify which Special Issue Call Topic you are responding to on the cover sheet of your submission.

For a free subscription, to learn more about Submission Requirements, to obtain an MS Word template, and to submit your paper, please see our Journal website:

<https://scholarcommons.usf.edu/jpt/>

Thank you!